Famous plane belly-flops at Cable

By Rebecca Pavitt Raney

A plane used as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's personal aircraft in the Korean War belly-flopped last week onto the runway of Cable Airport in Upland.

The pilot, 47-year-old George Robinson of Arlita, forgot to put down the landing gear.

"He put (the plane) down just like a perfect landing — and then we realized the landing gear wasn't down," said Paul Kiener, 42, of Upland, who was a passenger in the airplane.

No one was injured. Robinson estimated damage to the 1947 Navion at $500.

Kiener said he and Robinson forgot to run the checklist during landing because they were preoccupied with radio problems.

Robinson, who found the airplane in a junkyard in 1974, discovered it was MacArthur's by checking the serial numbers. Since then, he has restored the plane — complete with the five-star general's markings.

Kiener said the aircraft, designed for military observation, was built to handle belly landings.

A bystander, Steve Martinez, said he heard "a lot of scraping" when the plane landed.

Martinez, a flight instructor, said these types of landings happen at Cable Airport about once a year, but that the landings are not hazardous.

He said almost every pilot experiences belly landings.

"There's two types of pilots — those who have landed 'gear up,' and those who will," Martinez said.

Even so, Robinson was frustrated about the landing.

"Hey Paul," he said to Kiener. "How come we couldn't have done this in your airplane?"

"Because," Kiener said, "my landing gear is down."

Seniors add better than read

By Natalie Shore

Local high school seniors add better than they read, according to the latest results of the California Assessment Program tests.

However, area 12th-graders' average scores fell below statewide averages in both subjects, the state Department of Education recently reported.

Overall, 1988-89 results showed local districts dipped six points below the state average of 248 points in reading and seven points below the state average of 256 points in math. The maximum score on either test is 400 points.

Statewide, math scores rose six points while reading scores fell two points.

CAP tests are given annually to third-, sixth-, eighth- and 12th-grade students. The exams are used to put together a matrix, or group score, used by public schools to measure how well their students are learning the state's core curriculum.

A breakdown of local scores showed only students from Upland and Claremont schools topped the state average in both math and reading. Nevertheless, reading scores dropped in both districts.

Claremont reading scores fell 28 points from the previous year. By comparison, the 1988-89 exam required more reading analysis and interpretation, said

SANBAG eyes putting sales tax on November ballot

By David Madsen

An effort to put a transportation sales tax measure on the November ballot was initiated last week by the San Bernardino County Associated Governments.

The move came following a recent countywide poll that showed traffic is viewed as the major problem facing residents.

The poll of 600 residents was commissioned by the San Bernardino County Public Information Foundation, a group organized by the San Bernardino County Chamber of Commerce Executive Association.

The survey revealed there is enough support for a countywide transportation sales tax to pass, said Wes McDaniel, SANBAG executive director.

"The conclusion of the survey is that we should work toward a November 1989 election," McDaniel added.

However, to qualify for the November ballot, the measure must be approved before July 12 by 50 percent of the incorporated cities in the county and the Board of Supervisors.

Also, separate programs to fund the transporation needs of the desert and valley areas must be created prior to the deadline, McDaniel said.

Officials hope that by keeping funding for transportation projects in both areas separate, they can win support for measure in the desert area.

A strong turnout of desert voters helped defeat Measure A, a half-cent county transportation sales tax in November 1987.

"Funds from the desert would remain in a separate trust fund.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley introduces a system for converting diesel vehicles to methanol.

County unveils 'clean' vehicles

By Kimberly Heinrichs

EL MONTE — Amid questions as to whether they will meet their goal to convert their fleet to clean fuels, air officials unveiled two vehicles Thursday that operate on methanol and an additive and hailed it as a technological advancement that could quell such doubts.

"There are those I know who believe that in 10 years we will not achieve our reduction," said Norton Younglove, South Coast Air Quality Management District chairman.

"Avocet may well be the answer," he said at a press conference next to a yellow Los Angeles city maintenance truck and a Southern California Rapid Transit District bus.

Avocet is a fuel additive that allows methanol to be used in regular diesel engines without significant retrofitting. Currently, experimental buses running on methanol — such as the three operating in Riverside County — have special engines installed to use the fuel.

About half of the $500,000 bus was paid funded with money from the air district's $30.4-million clean fuels development budget. It is the first working demonstration project from the program. Work and parts for the truck were donated by manufacturers.

The recently approved plan to clean the air by 2007 calls for the conversion of all public buses, 70 percent of the heavy-duty trucks and 40 percent of the cars in the district's four-county area to methanol or other clean fuels by 2000.

In addition, the Environmental Protection Agency has set January 1991 as the deadline by which public transportation agencies must begin buying clean-fueled buses to replace their aging vehicles.

"It's up to the manufacturer. Right now what we're being told is they're not going to make it," said Robert Chafin, general manager of Omnitrans, which serves San Bernardino County.

Unlike the neighboring agency to the south, Omnitrans is sitting back and waiting to see what happens in the next year before it commits to a clean fuel, Chafin said.

He said the transportation industry is lobbying the federal agency to push the bus deadline forward to 1994, when truck fleets must begin converting.

"We have no intention of backing down from the stringent 1991 bus standards," said James Boyd, executive officer of the California Air Resources Board, which would take over enforcement of the standards

David Rose, curriculum services director for Claremont Unified.

Claremont school officials are reviewing the 12th-grade curriculum to determine what caused scores to decline, Rose said.

"It (the test) reflects more higher level thinking skills ... and we're seeing whether our program has addressed all of those skills," he said.

Students in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District equaled the state average in reading and scored within nine points of the state average in math. The results represent major gains for the high school district when compared to districts with similar student populations.

"The scores reflect a concerted effort on the part of faculty, staff and students to perform, and every year we are getting better at integrating our total effort in this direction," said Bette Harrison, associate superintendent for the high school district.

Each district is ranked first according to the statewide average and then relative to districts whose students come from similar socio-economic backgrounds.

The region's lowest scores came out of Pomona Unified schools. Despite some gains, Pomona 12th graders scored 51 points below the state average in reading and 56 points below the state average in math.

"You have to compare your school with other schools within the relative ranking," said Portia Lee, testing supervisor for Pomona schools.

Although Pomona's performance ranked it at the bottom of the statewide scale, students improved significantly when compared to districts with similar student populations, Lee said.

"It's positive. We're moving and we're looking at the strategies. We want to find some more ways to move even better."

should the EPA back down.

The Riverside Transit Agency's three experimental buses have been plagued with mechanical problems, although Assistant General Manager Robert Boston said not all woes can be attributed to the methanol.

In March, the three methanol buses were out of service for repairs 510.5 hours compared to only 1.5 hours for the three diesel buses. But Boston said two of the experimental buses had major engine repairs that might not be related to their fuel.

"The jury's still out on that," he said, adding that it's a positive sign that the trio has already run 29,000 miles since the beginning of the year. "We've attained in one quarter three-fourths of all the mileage as we did last year."

However, chronic problems with fuel injectors and glow plugs — which heat the cylinder allowing the fuel to fire — have slowed down the buses, he said.

Younglove said the federal government must take some responsibility for the lack of technology.

"We do have one concern called our national government," he said, citing Congress' failure to date to pass a new version of the Clean Air Act.

The officials hope that Avocet, developed by Imperial Chemical Industries, will prove to be cost effective and efficient. Already, twice as much methanol is needed to produce the same amount of energy as gasoline — effectively doubling the cost. But the price of methanol would plummet dramatically if it were mass produced, air district spokesman Bill Kelly said.

The price of adding Avocet, now about 30 cents more a gallon, would shrink to only 5 to 15 cents more per gallon, said Glyn Short of Imperial Chemical Industries.

Seniors 'hotel' abuilding

By Kathy Betts

With 15 percent of its population over 55, Montclair can use another senior citizen housing facility, city officials and developers say.

Montclair Royale, an 118-room "senior citizen hotel" now under construction at Monte Vista Avenue and San Bernardino Road, will be the largest of four housing projects for elderly residents in Montclair, said city Associate Planner Hal Fredericksen.

Completion is due by year's end, said Robert Hirsch of Goldrich, Kest & Associates, a Santa Monica-based firm in charge of the project.

"We were looking (to build such a facility) for some time in Montclair ... . It's an ideal location," Hirsch said. "There are not any retirement homes around there."

Fredrickson said Montclair has between 4,500 and 5,000 residents over 55, based on population adjustments made to the 1980 Census.

"Where (Montclair Royale is) located — near medical facilities (Doctors' Hospital of Montclair) and near shopping (Montclair Plaza) — it falls nicely in that area," Mayor Larry Rhinehart said. The city is not seeking "to corner the market on senior citizen housing."

The two- and three-story facility, approved by the City Council in October 1987 after several public hearings, will be restricted to ambulatory seniors — which includes those with canes and walkers — as a licensing requirement of the state Department of Public Health.

Medical reports must be kept on all residents, Hirsch said.

Rooms, ranging from 400-square-foot studios to 600-square-foot suites, will be rented for $1,200 to $2,000 per month to one and two seniors. Leases will not be made, he said.

Referring to the city's other senior citizen facilities, Hirsch said: "Our rents won't hurt them, (Montclair Royale's) are more."

The facility's monthly rents will include three meals a day served in a common dining room, social programs, a van to transport residents to nearby appointments, switchboard telephone service, maids and a professional staff, he said.

Each room will have heating and air-conditioning controls, a private bath and decorator furnishings. Most rooms will have private patios or private balconies, he said.

The developers voluntarily agreed to allow 10 percent of its occupancy to be lower-income residents, those who must receive Supplemental Security Income. They will be housed two to a room.

Upland seeks venue change

By Kathy Betts

Upland would face a strange dilemma in defending itself against a San Bernardino County lawsuit if the case was tried in San Bernardino Superior Court.

Therefore, the attorney representing Upland's Redevelopment Agency soon will ask to move the case "to a neutral county."

Attorney Andrew Arczynski, at the agency's request, soon will be filing an action with the county Superior Court to consolidate the county's lawsuit with one filed by the county superintendent of schools against Upland and also remove the consolidated case to another county.

More than a month ago, the county and its superintendent of schools filed a complaint in Superior Court to prevent Upland from merging its five redevelopment projects, which would reduce the county's property tax base.

"The law does not provide for one (redevelopment) project area to help pay for needed infrastructure work in another (project) area," Arczynski said.

That is why Upland wants to combine its project areas — labeled Foothill, Seventh and Mountain, Benson and Arrow, airport area and Canyon Ridge — to improve them interchangeably and generate needed revenues to provide services to residents.

Arczynski, of the Brea-based law firm of Markman, Arczynski, Goldman and Hanson, summed up the lawsuits by saying: "It's a financial issue."

Arczynski said a hearing soon should be held in county Superior Court to determine where the case would be tried, if tried at all.

"We haven't agreed on the county," he said, yet "the main approach to the case (on both sides) is for a summary judgement" to be made to prevent the matter from going to trial.

"We have a good shot at obtaining a summary judgement," he said, though adding that that is difficult for judges to do.

If the case went to trial, Arczynski said he would like it to be handled in Los Angeles or Orange counties because they would be closer to his work.

He said attorney Paul St. John of the county counsel's office, who is representing the county in that case, told him he would like the matter to be tried in Riverside County because it would be more convenient.

HOW TO HAVE A SUCCESSFUL GARAGE SALE IN 9 EASY STEPS:

1. Make a date. Set a time of day. Have your Garage Sale run for at least two days. Check weather reports. Make sure that there're no other events happening on the days you chose.

2. Select the items you want to sell and decide on their prices. Make sure they look their best and are correctly tagged. After you have them assembled, check again in the attic, closets, basement for items you haven't used in over a year. Don't be choosy...what you may consider unworthy of the garbage dump might be someone else's treasure.

3. Write your ad. Describe big ticket items and include important details: address, date, time and even offer directions.

4. Place your ad in the Classified section of the Newspaper at least a few days before the sale is set to take place.

5. Place signs in your area. Use arrows to guide prospective customers to your home. Put signs up by busy streets and intersections for maximum visibility. Note: some areas may have laws limiting placement of these signs. Check with the planning department in your community to get proper information.

6. Price all items clearly...and reasonably. Use bright markers or colored stickers. Remember that Garage Sales are where people look for bargains and where you're looking to clear out your garage. Whatever's not sold will have to go back to you...so price it low and sell it fast.

7. Display items as pleasingly as possible. Create a traffic flow with space for aisles for customers to maneuver through the area without walking into things or knocking them over.

8. Set up a 'cashier's' area and have one person tend it at all times (make sure someone's available to 'spell' them throughout the sale). Place it where you have the best view of the merchandise.

9. Ask friends and neighbors if they'd like to partake in the sale. The more merchandise, the more bargains to be found...and likely the more interest in the event. Mention this in your ad as well as on signs: Block Sale or Four Family Garage Sale.
